

Point of Grace

A thousand little things to be grateful for

—by Jenna-Lea Kelland

Turn on your TV or radio and you'll find no shortage of top-hits and overnight successes. But in the midst of all of that noise, you may find yourself craving something more. Something authentic, something deeper, something fresh...well look no further!

Counting blessings

The women of Point of Grace are celebrating 20 years together, and to mark this feat, they have released 'A Thousand Little Things', their 12th record. Brimming with the beautiful harmonies, encouraging lyrics, and graceful melodies that Shelley Breen, Denise Jones and Leigh Cappillino are known for, the album reminds us to be mindful of the multitude of blessings God has given us. And what the world needs now - more than ever - is to remember how important gratitude is, each and every day.

A juggling act

You may ask yourself how a band who has already achieved such monumental success - 27 #1 songs, 13 Dove awards, two Grammy

The talented ladies of 'Point of Grace' are moms, wives, and artists; and, like every working woman, they're thankful for the fullness in their lives, yet striving to find a balance.

Leigh Cappillino, Shelley Breen, Denise Jones

The trio will be at Beauty for Ashes this month!

nominations, career album sales in excess of 7 million with multiple Platinum and Gold certifications, and one of the Top 10 best-selling artists in the history of Contemporary Christian Music - presses on? It's quite simple: They love what they do, and they love sharing that affect them, and share that a relationship with Christ is the true source for peace and assurance in their lives.

"At times girls feel like they are the only ones who struggle with certain issues," says Denise of Point of Grace. "With a Girls of it with their family and their fans.

Point of Grace are thrilled to make their first trip to South Africa. They will join renowned speaker Ellie Lofaro as part of the Beauty For Ashes "Look Up" Women's Conference from 23 - 24 May.

These talented ladies are moms, wives, and artists, and, like every working woman, they're thankful for the fullness in their lives, yet striving to find a balance. A strong work ethic - fostered through years of touring, recording and writing - drives these three women to keep making music to share with their listeners.

"I wouldn't trade the nights in the van, the nights pulling cables, the nights only being able to eat rice and beans, because you get to a place of gratitude, a place where you know how to connect," Leigh muses. "It's OK to work hard!"

Reaching all ages

In 2002, Point of Grace founded Girls of Grace Ministry, which grew out of their desire to bring teen girls together to talk about issues

Grace conference it gives them the opportunity to come together in a large group and realise that we all have our own struggles, and yet, we are in this together!"

Heart for ministry

Point of Grace is thrilled to announce their first trip to South Africa. They will join renowned author and speaker Ellie Lofaro as part of the 'Beauty For Ashes-Look Up' 19th Annual Women's Conference from May 23rd-24th.

"We are beyond honoured and blessed to have this opportunity. It has been a lifelong dream for us to see this beautiful part of the world, and share our hearts and music with our sisters in South Africa," said Leigh Cappillino. ■

More information on Beauty For Ashes can be found at www.beautyforashes.co.za. For more info about Point of Grace, see: www.pointofgrace.net

